Overview: Global tire market stood at around $ 204 billion in 2017 and is projected to reach $ 304 billion by 2023, on the back of growing vehicle sales and fleet across the globe. Additionally, rising per capita income and anticipated increase in the launch of new vehicles are few of the other factors expected to drive tire sales in the coming years. Growing sales network of multinational tire companies, increasing demand for tires from OEMs and rising tire sales in the replacement market are anticipated to positively influence the global tire market during the forecast period.
